The image shows two overlapping Windows error dialog boxes. The left box, titled "Virtual Machine Connection", contains the following text:

The application encountered an error while attempting to change the state of 'VSAN'.

'VSAN' failed to start.

Virtual machine 'VSAN' could not be started because the hypervisor is not running.

'VSAN' failed to start. (Virtual machine ID ' 54A2C-2435-D5D2433-4525-341234 ').

Virtual machine 'VSAN' could not be started because the hypervisor is not running (Virtual machine ID ' 54A2C-2435-D5D2433-4525-341234 ').

The following actions may help you resolve the problem:

- 1) Verify that the processor of the physical computer has a supported version of hardware-assisted virtualization.
- 2) Verify that hardware-assisted virtualization and hardware-assisted data execution protection are enabled in the BIOS of the physical computer. (If you edit the BIOS to enable either setting, you must turn off the power to the physical computer and then turn it back on. Resetting the physical computer is not sufficient.)
- 3) If you have made changes to the Boot Configuration Data store, review these changes to ensure that the hypervisor is configured to launch automatically.
